As the result of a directive issued by the East German Ministry of the Interior, a number of dwellings were requisitioned in Klotzsche near Dresden. Approximately 700 dwellings were included in the requisition in early January 1955. Following this action, further dwellings were requisitioned along the Königsbrücker Landstrasse. The quarters are to be used by KVP officers, as well as by the nuclear scientists who have returned from the USSR and are engaged in the construction of an atomic pile on Dresdener Heide.¹
